

WRITING PROMPTS: SET 2

If you need help getting started, use any of the prompts below. Of course, you can always write on a topic or idea of your choice, or you can continue a previous piece. You can also always go back to a previous set of prompts.

1. You and your dog/cat switch bodies for a day. Imagine both of your experiences and describe them.
2. Draw something. Then explain the drawing or write the story to go along with it.
3. You ended up inside your favorite video game. What is it like?
4. Martin Luther King, Jr. once said, "Our lives begin to end the day we become silent about things that matter." Explain what he means. How is it relevant today?
5. Playing a team sport can have both positives and negatives. Explain both sides.
6. An alien shows up on your doorstep. They do not know what food is. Explain it to them as best as you can.
7. Rewrite a common story or fairy tale, but add a new twist! (Think "Goldilocks," "The Three Little Pigs," or "Rapunzel.")
8. We're all familiar with the stories, "If You Give a Mouse a Cookie," or "If You Give a Moose a Pancake." Write the story "If You Give a Bear a Brownie."
9. What is the best show (Hulu, Netflix, Youtube, etc.) and why?
10. What is one thing you wish you could change about school and why? Think of something reasonable (you can't get rid of it, how can you improve it?).
11. It's 2020. Be reflective. How have you changed since you were in 6th grade?
12. Write about your favorite trip you've gone on so far.
13. Write a thank you note to a friend who gave you onion and garlic-flavored chewing gum.
14. Invent and describe a new food.
15. If you could live inside any fictional place, where would it be? Why?

WRITING PROMPTS: SET 2

If you need help getting started, use any of the prompts below. Of course, you can always write on a topic or idea of your choice, or you can continue a previous piece. You can also always go back to a previous set of prompts.

1. You and your dog/cat switch bodies for a day. Imagine both of your experiences and describe them.
2. Draw something. Then explain the drawing or write the story to go along with it.
3. You ended up inside your favorite video game. What is it like?
4. Martin Luther King, Jr. once said, "Our lives begin to end the day we become silent about things that matter." Explain what he means. How is it relevant today?
5. Playing a team sport can have both positives and negatives. Explain both sides.
6. An alien shows up on your doorstep. They do not know what food is. Explain it to them as best as you can.
7. Rewrite a common story or fairy tale, but add a new twist! (Think "Goldilocks," "The Three Little Pigs," or "Rapunzel.")
8. We're all familiar with the stories, "If You Give a Mouse a Cookie," or "If You Give a Moose a Pancake." Write the story "If You Give a Bear a Brownie."
9. What is the best show (Hulu, Netflix, Youtube, etc.) and why?
10. What is one thing you wish you could change about school and why? Think of something reasonable (you can't get rid of it, how can you improve it?).
11. It's 2020. Be reflective. How have you changed since you were in 6th grade?
12. Write about your favorite trip you've gone on so far.
13. Write a thank you note to a friend who gave you onion and garlic-flavored chewing gum.
14. Invent and describe a new food.
15. If you could live inside any fictional place, where would it be? Why?